That the American school system is rapidly moving into a new era, that we are on the threshold of a real crisis in education may be news to quite a number not directly connected with the educational picture. To us of the education division it is an alarming fact.

We view with concern the unprecedented increase in the number of children deluging the schools of the nation. The research division of the NEA reports that each September for the next six years will find one million more youngsters crowding into the elementary schools than were present the preceding year. While the high school age-group has been relatively static during the last decade, it showed its first modest upturn in 1952. By 1955 the increase will be pronounced; by 1960 the total enrollment in high schools will be 50 per cent greater than in 1950. And there is no indication of any abatement since the birthrate of 1952 has reached an all-time high of approximately four million.

"It is five minutes to midnight as far as time for planning is concerned," exclaims Dr. Urban Fleege, staff associate of the NCEA; "the avalanche is already at our doorstep!"

Adequate planning to meet this crisis must include (1) vastly expanded budgets, (2) aggressive building programs, and (3) greatly increased numbers of adequately prepared teachers. Of these three steps, the most important by far is the third—getting the teachers. That is where our responsibility comes in. We have the double task of supplying more teachers and of supplying well-trained teachers. In this wise the mounting school crisis is rumbling at our own front door.

Attention, Alumni!

In order to staff the schools adequately, "one out of every seven high school graduates will need to go into teacher training," says Dr. Harold J. Bowers, State Department of Education. But we know that only one out of five goes to college, and of these only a small percentage will pursue a teacher education program. Where else, then, may be the source of our future teachers? This is where you as an alumnus can enter the picture. Holders of degrees, other than professional education degrees, can qualify for an Ohio certificate to teach in the elementary schools by completing basic training in elementary education amounting to at least twelve semester hours.

To accommodate the number who have already applied for this kind of training, we have set up a convenient and efficient program for "retraining" purposes which will allow candidates to get all twelve semester hours during the space of a single summer period. Tied in with this program are several education workshops staffed by experts which will be geared to the practical teaching needs of the enrollees.

Just last week there was a graduate of the arts division of the class of 1950 who stepped into our education office and inquired about qualifying for a teaching certificate. When she was asked why she was attracted to teaching, she said, "I've always heard that teachers were poorly paid. Actually, I've been working at a secretarial job for these three years and only last week I got a raise to $3200 a year, which is the beginning salary of a teacher in the Dayton public school system and on a nine-month basis at that! Besides," she continued, "I always did prefer working with people rather than dealing with just mechanical routine."

While we believe that teachers' salaries in general are still far short of what they should be, nevertheless we are convinced that the greatest increment in the teaching profession is the non-taxable kind — the satisfaction of doing the most worthwhile work in the world. For a person who takes pride in bringing out the best in a youngster's personality, who thrills to the accomplishment of awakening young minds or of starting a child on a useful, fruitful life, teaching may bring the rewards of a hundred satisfactions. There are many mothers with children grown to school age who could be natural classroom artists. At the same time, there are few occupations which permit the hours of employment to dovetail so well with the hours and time of year when children are in school as does teaching.

Crisis in Education

Through an attractive brochure entitled Crisis in Education, which we are circulating widely right now, five sources from which additional teachers may come (other than full-time students) are indicated, and the requirements for gaining the different types of certification are clearly outlined.

The one program which seems to have the greatest appeal is Cadet teaching. Although it takes longer to gain a degree via the Cadet route, nevertheless, by the time the candidate earns his B.S. in Educ., he has been able to gain much more benefit from his college courses and generally turns out to be a better teacher. A Cadet teacher has the advantage of having gained "the feel" of the teacher's job; he is able to bring a larger experiential background to his college work and so is able to assimilate more useful knowledge and bring it to immediate practice in his own classroom teaching.

Of course, the most productive source of teacher supply are students in the senior high schools. In order to draw on this source in the immediate area, we invited guidance officers and principals from forty Miami Valley high schools to a School Guidance Conference last February 26. Discussion centered on the problem of supplying adequate teaching personnel to cope with the expanding school enrollments. It succeeded in promoting cooperative thinking on the crucial problem and in finding practical ways of dealing with it. The Conference, sponsored by our student promotion office, is intended to be an annual affair.

In addition to these yearly conferences with high school officials, we are sponsoring through our own education students the organizing of Future Teachers of America Clubs in the local high schools. We do agree that FTA "stands on the threshold of greatness" since it will be able to meet head-on the big challenge of teacher shortage.

The highest is the rarest. The first need of our Catholic schools is an increased number of generous souls who will respond to God's grace to dedicate themselves to the ideal life of a religious teacher. God is ever generous in giving His graces. Where the need is greatest, the bestowal of graces is greatest too. It requires generosity and courage to respond. There are many young people who have the grace to become Sisters, Brothers, or Priests, but who may be too faint-hearted. They need external helps. Through our counseling service, through distributed literature, through the annual letter from the president, through organized and individual efforts we hope we are contributing somewhat to supply this highest of needs.

No Sacrifice To Quality

During the time of emergency there is often a temptation to let down the bars on teacher qualifications and to let almost anybody serve in a sort of stop-gap capacity. There is danger in this happening in the present school crisis. In past years perhaps no professional field has been so infested with quackery as has teaching. There have been many untrained and poorly trained teachers who have been let loose to commit veritable psychological murder in the classroom. The profession must in dire protection of the young be careful to admit to certification only those who are fully qualified. The state departments of education and other responsible agencies in charge of professional standards are doing their utmost not only to hold to the line but actually to improve the quality of teacher preparation.

That we are proud of the quality of teaching our graduates are doing goes without saying. We look upon the education they received here as superior to the average teacher-training institution. However, growth and improvement are expected attributes of a healthy institution, and we do believe we are improving in the quality of professional education we are offering.

Much of the stimulus to this improvement has come from our graduates themselves who through questionnaires they filled out and through suggestions they gave in personal interviews pointed out ways in which their own preparation for teaching could have been more profitable. The collective answers amounted almost to a cry in unison: "Wish we could have had more actual practice connected with the educational theory of our courses. A more realistic acquaintance with the actual problems of teaching should be provided."

When asked how they proposed this be done, our graduates suggested: (1) More student teaching earlier in the program; (2) Chances to see educational theory operate in the classroom; (3) Greater opportunities to take on professional responsibilities while in training.

Answering Needs

In answer to these voiced needs, we have conducted quite a campaign in our education division to close the gap between educational theory and educational practice, and we believe

Education students get a practical training as well as theoretical. Substitute assignments in Dayton schools give students an early chance to gain the experience they need. Here freshmen Mary Becker, left, in a first we have made much progress. The following will summarize the achievements to date:

1. Student teaching has been enlarged to twelve semester hours, often taking the time of an entire semester. Dr. Daniel Leary has been made full-time director of student teaching in order to render greater assistance in his supervisory capacity and to extend the follow-up work on graduates. Also, students now register for student-teaching at that point in their eight-semester program when they appear to be most ready for it. For some it may be as early as the fifth semester.

2. Students now do required observation of teaching in the neighboring public and Catholic schools in connection with each of their education courses starting in their freshman year. In this way, the student gets to see dozens of classrooms in operation, the observation being pointed at specific practices that tie-in with the campus course.

3. Experience in doing substitute teaching on a part-day basis has injected new life into the courses. Our students, from the second-semester freshman class on up to the senior class, receive assignments to teach in a variety of schools on different grade levels throughout the Dayton area. While they have the full responsibility of conducting the class, they nevertheless have the advantage of preliminary class-plans, directions, and practical tips from the regular teachers whose places they temporarily take. Thus far, substitute teaching has been done on a volunteer basis; however, we have had more students requesting this kind of experience than we could accommodate. During the current semester we have filled more than three hundred teaching posts with our sub-teachers.

4. The Education Students Guidance Conference has been instituted wherein our students choose their own student advisers and through group discussion make recommendations to the staff on problems and solutions pertaining to their educational program.

5. The Fulton J. Sheen Chapter, Future Teachers of America, has been organized, chartered by the National Education Association and bearing membership in the Ohio Education Association. This gives members full professional standing and allows them to engage in the activities of professional education.

Our FTA Chapter is looked on as being one of the most active in Ohio. Project activities in which members engage are: volunteer service bureau (volunteer work of a pre-teaching nature with the Dayton Community Welfare Council), substitute teaching, writers' project, FTA assistance to high schools, display materials project, campus beautification, radio programming, and the Christopher project.

At the Annual Ohio Conference of FTA Chapters held at Ohio State University last May 2, three of our members were elected to offices of top leadership, namely to State presidency and State secretaryship with the faculty moderator ushered in as State Adviser of FTA Chapters. One of our members was elected as the Ohio delegate to represent the Ohio FTA Chapters at the annual convention in Miami, Florida, this June, with all expenses paid.

6. Individual counseling service has been established. Each entering student is given a staff counselor. Scheduled interviews are held at least once a month. The idea behind this is to foster desirable adjustment in the student to academic requirements, work habits, social and personal development. If the student so desires, he may keep with the same counselor throughout his four years of college.

Staff Meetings

7. Right now, in weekly staff meetings, we are undertaking a re-evaluation of our program in the interest of making the goals of teacher education as real and as directly attainable as possible. While a teacher of history may consider it sufficient merely to induce students to know the historical movements of the past, the task of an education teacher is not so simple. Mere knowledge of the science of education is only the first step. The real task is turning out good teachers, competent teachers! This means inducing a development in our future teachers which far transcends subject-matter mastery. It means cultivating in them the skills, habits, attitudes, and qualities of personality which will allow them to make most desirable use of the knowledge imparted.

Most of all through our staff meetings we have gained that harmony of minds and wills which enables us to look outward in the same direction, to move forward to the same high goals. We are sure that in pursuing this well-planned course in teacher education, we will be followed by a greater number of high-minded future teachers who will do honor in these years of crisis both to the teaching profession and to their Alma Mater.

The Alumni Honor Roll

The results listed on the following pages represent contributions to date (May 18) by Alumni of the Dayton area (including some neighboring towns) and some friends to the Dormitory Furnishing Project. All donors were asked to contribute with the idea in mind that they will be asked again each year. Actually this is our First Annual Alumni Fund, the first time that a program of this nature was attempted among the Alumni.

Results are tabulated by classes or groups of classes (where the numbers involved are small). The number given in each class or group of classes represents the number of Alumni and former students living in the Dayton area and listed in our files; how many contributors there were from each class or group is also indicated; the total amount collected from the contributors in each class or group of classes is given; and the names under each class or group of classes represents those who actually contributed to the total listed at the head of the group.

There are approximately 2,400 Alumni and former students listed on the Alumni files from the Dayton area. To date, more than 900 have contributed $26,543.20 to this year's Fund; in addition, 78 friends of Alumni and students in the evening classes have given $3,884.00. Total contributors, therefore, in the Dayton area number 989 with total gifts towards the Dormitory Furnishings amounting to $30,427.20. (Actually, $2,250.00 of this amount has been specially designated for other purposes by the donors.)

For the Dayton area, therefore, 40% of our Alumni have contributed an average of $30.76!

In the report of the 1952 Alumni Funds from 278 colleges and universities throughout the country, only 50 reported a higher average gift per Alumnus and only 24 reported a higher percentage of Alumni contributors! U. D. Alumni have therefore given a wonderful account of themselves to date in comparison with others throughout the nation. While these figures are not complete since they do not represent final results of the year and do not include the out-of-Dayton Alumni, they are indicative of a trend that gives the University Administration much reason to look ahead with more confidence than ever to the support of their Alumni. At the same time, the local figures stand as a challenge to the Alumni in other parts of the country to "go and do likewise."

To give a graphic idea of the results of our Alumni Fund Appeal to date, the table below shows how the U.D. stacks up against a number of other Ohio colleges and universities.

	Total Alumni	# Alumni Contributors	% Alumni Contributors	Amount Contributed	Average Alumni Gift

*Figures for Dayton represent only incomplete returns for 1952-1953 from Alumni in the Dayton area. Additions will appear in the September issue of the ALUMNUS. The First Annual Alumni Fund closes June 30—Alumni from out-of-Dayton areas will be reported also in September issue of ALUMNUS.

"... A Quiet Tower of Strength

A Tribute to

The Field House, opened for the first time for the season of 1950-51, was the second building built during Fr. Renneker's presidency.

The Mechanical Engineering Lab, dedicated during the centennial week in 1949, provided much needed space for engineering labs and was a major factor in the accreditation of the engineering program by the ECPD.

The ROTC building was dedicated in late 1951. The third major building to be built during Fr. Renneker's presidency.

Ground was broken March 31 for the new men's dormitory on the campus. Richard Montgomery, '53, president of the Student Council, and Louis Mahrt, president of the National Alumni Association broke the ground together.

and Faith”

A Leader and His Deeds

Sometime during the coming summer, Father Renneker, UD president for the last nine years, will complete his third term.

His leadership has been felt on the Hilltop for almost 30 years, for it was in 1924 that he first became vice-president. Throughout the ensuing years the gentle priest with the twinkling eyes has been proceeding quietly in his work, helping others and helping the growth of his alma mater.

In 1939 he became dean. And in 1944 he began the first of his three terms as president; years which have seen a mighty change. In these years, the student body has tripled, the Dayton community has become aware of the values of the University, and the physical plant at UD has increased in several major ways. Because it's almost impossible to show graphically many of the things that Father Renneker's wisdom and judgment have brought forth, tribute can be paid to him here only by showing those buildings in which he has had a major hand.

An humble thanks to you—Father George J. Renneker—for all you have done for us and for OUR UNIVERSITY.

"Doc" Saletel Dead, Campus Shocked By His Sudden Passing

Bro. Louis A. Saletel, S.M.

Bro. Louis A. Saletel, S.M., associate dean and head of the division of science, died suddenly of a heart attack in his office, Friday, May 15.

"Doc" was a student favorite and his death cast a pall on the campus. He had been a member of the faculty for 17 years at different times.

Much of his popularity among the students came from his contacts as faculty adviser to the yearbook, "The Daytonian." He was working on the book when he died.

He was made head of the department of geology in 1941 and a full professor in 1942. He became associate dean of science in 1946. In 1951 he was made acting dean of engineering during the illness of Bro. J. Albert Wehrle.

While he was dean of engineering, he led the activities which brought about the accreditation of UD's program in civil, electrical and mechanical engineering by the Engineers Council on Professional Development.

The major appeal that "Doc" had was his interest in his students. Through his efforts each of the pre-medical classes of the last two years were accepted 100% in medical schools, no mean achievement in itself. This year all home economics students majoring in dietetics have been granted dietetic internships.

Very Rev. John A. Elbert, S.M., celebrated the funeral mass, assisted by Father Renneker and Father Kobe. Father Friedel spoke. A full chapel paid their last tribute to a man well-respected by all.

Brother Saletel is survived by five brothers and five sisters, one of whom is Bro. "Tony" Saletel of Chaminade High School, Dayton.

County Alumni Board Plans Several Events

Two sessions of the officers and board of the Montgomery County chapter of the Alumni Association were held on April 29 and May 11 under the chairmanship of chapter president, Lloyd Rensel. Purpose was to clear up details for the Third Annual chapter dinner to be held June 13 at the Miami Valley Golf Club.

Tickets were distributed among board members and at the May 11 meeting the response was such that it will prove necessary to provide larger accommodations in the future to satisfy the demand.

At meetings during the year a plan to set up a program of annual recognition in three fields was established. Annually, beginning with 1953 the chapter will recognize service for outstanding civic achievement, service to the chapter and an outstanding professional contribution. The first awards will be given at the annual banquet June 13th.

Other subjects discussed at the meetings included some planning for the Alumni Fund next year and some other special projects.

National Alumni Board Appeals for Names of Dead for Memorial Mass in Fall

At the last meeting of the Board of Directors of the National Alumni Association, a motion was passed to establish the custom of a Memorial Mass in connection with Homecoming each year. The first such mass will be held on October 18, the Sunday following the Homecoming game with Louisville.

Following the pattern set up last year, the Alumni dinner at Homecoming will again be held in the Field House, at which time the annual meeting of the Association will be held and the reports of the various officers made. It is expected that next fall's party will be patterned on last year's success.

The Alumni Board requested that the ALUMNUS take the lead in appealing for the names of ALL alumni who have passed on during the year, in order that they may be properly honored at the Memorial Mass. Although the ALUMNUS tries to locate all such information we are not infallible and the help of all alumni in bringing forth the names of those to be honored will be appreciated.

Hilltop Jottings

■ A new food service manager has been employed by the University to take over the operation of the kitchens and dining rooms of the University. Hal A. Stubbs, formerly director of food service at the University of New Mexico will report on June 15th. It is expected that a good deal of renovation will be made to the dining rooms in Chaminade Hall during the summer. The downstairs cafeteria will be discontinued with all food service now on one floor and in one place.

■ The University was host to two meetings during the spring. On March 21 a student Marian Congress was held with representatives present from 12 colleges in the Ohio-Kentucky area of the National Federation of Catholic College Students. The Ohio Association of College and University Business Officers held a two-day meeting in early April.

■ As part of a plan to help alleviate the shortage of engineers, the University has established a plan for giving engineering aptitude tests to high school seniors without charge. This was done in four communities this spring with some good response. After testing, the students records are then evaluated and if necessary the student enrolls for a pre-college summer session as a refresher.

■ Nelson Harper of the faculty of music has resigned to become diocesan director of music in the Catholic schools of Cleveland.

■ Wilfred J. Steiner, of the history department has been granted a year's leave of absence to accept a Fulbright scholarship to study in Rome, Italy. Steiner will study the archives of the Vatican on the relations of Pope Clement VII and Francis I of France.

■ George H. Mead, Martin Kuntz, Sr., and Arnolda Helmig Becker will receive honorary doctors of humanities at the commencement June 6th. Bro. Albert H. Rose of the political science department will be the speaker.

■ The Statue of Our Lady of the Pillar, given to UD by the City Commission of Saragosa, Spain, at the time of the triple centennial in 1950, arrived on the campus this spring and has been given to the Marian Library by Father Renneker.

■ Work is progressing on the new dormitory. Already the concrete for the basement is in place and as we go to press the forms are in place for the first floor. The contractor expects to pour a floor every two weeks.

■ The UD Players have established a new policy of profit-sharing with groups that set up theatre parties. Under the new plan, groups can have a special showing and have a room for a meeting also, or can reserve a large block of seats for a specific performance and share in the profits of the night.

Among the Alums

JIM SCHWERING '39

Jim has sent us a ten-point outline of his biography since leaving UD, so let's follow them one by one.

He was a member of the class of 1939, and after graduation he returned to his home town of Cleveland where he worked until early 1941.

Then he was drafted into the Army. After training he was sent to Australia in November, 1941, arriving down under in time for Christmas. After a year in the land of the kangaroos, he was commissioned and dispatched to New Guinea.

The rest of the war he spent shuttling between Australia, New Guinea, and the Philippines, emerging, as he says, "a major, by the Grace of God and a lot of luck."

After his discharge, Jim landed in New York and became associated with the Eagle Paint Manufacturing Company, where he is now plant superintendent. Right now, according to Jim's story, he is "still single and becoming a crusty old bachelor rapidly." Although why we can't figure out.

Must be the women in New York are missing a good bet for the rest of Jim's outline mentions that he is acquiring a house in Manhattan and that his chief hobby right now is a "90-acre farm I have in west New Jersey."

His other hobbies, listed in order of preference are—martinis, the theatre and concerts.

Business address: 50 Eighth Avenue, New York City; no home address available girls.

JOSEPH E. KELLER '28

If we've ever heard of a busier guy I'm not sure when it was. Joe Keller is one fella who seems to be on the perennial merry-go-round but good. And I do mean good.

You name it, be it professional, civic or service in any respect and Joe Keller is your man.

His was a busy career even here at UD where he was editor of the Exponent and the UD News and a part-time instructor.

After getting his LL.B. here in 1930, he was a lawyer in Dayton and served as judge of the Oakwood Municipal Court for four years.

He left Dayton in 1934 to join the recently organized Federal Communications Commission as an administrative assistant to the Commissioner.

He received a doctor of jurisprudence degree from Georgetown University in 1935 and has been active in legal circles in Washington ever since.

In 1938 he became a member of the firm of Dow and Lohnes, now Dow, Lohnes and Albertson, engaging in the practice of law before various federal agencies. The firm is considered the third largest in Washington in practice before the FCC. He has been active with the American Petroleum Industries committee.

During the war he served as a major, assigned to the office of the Undersecretary of War, and was a special liaison officer to the Director of the Office of Defense Transportation.

Joe has been very active in the Boy Scout movement too. Right now he is chairman of the Archbishop's Catholic Committee on Scouting for the Archdiocese of Washington, a member of the Board of the National Capitol Area Council. Recently he received the Silver Beaver Award, highest award possible for scout leaders.

And Joe has served his alma mater well too, for he has been at the center of many of the activities of the Washington area alumni for several years.

Home Address: The Westchester, 4000 Cathedral Avenue, N.W., Washington; Business address, Dow, Lohnes and Albertson, the Munsey Building, Washington 4, D. C.

JOHNNY DELP '50

Our great half-back went right to work after his graduation, joining his brothers in the wholesale hardware business in Toledo.

Johnny has been a sales representative for the firm, the Toledo Hardware and Supply Company ever since. His territory includes traveling over northern Ohio and southern Michigan.

In August, 1951, Johnny married the former Mary Jane Gilmore of Toledo. Kathleen June was born in June, 1952.

Continuing his interest in athletics, he has made it a hobby now. For the past two years Johnny has coached the parish

CYO high school football team.

In the two years Johnny's boys have only been defeated once and have been the city champions both years.

(We couldn't get Johnny to admit what his system was, or how he plans to defend the title but we have an idea that the competition finds it rough going when they're up against Johnny and his boys.)

Incidentally for those of you who want to locate Johnny in Toledo, don't use his old address. He's now living in Larchmont Gardens.

Home address: 4735 Willys Parkway, Apartment 203, Toledo; business address: care of Toledo Hardware and Supply Co.

ALMA KRUEGER '44

Just before graduation Alma had resigned her position at Miami Valley Hospital, and right after the big day she left for a rest in California.

When she returned in September, 1944, she was appointed supervisor of the Dayton

Public Health Clinic. The work of the clinic was divided into two parts—diagnosis and treatment, and control.

When Alma started working at the clinic there were three doctors, four nurses, two clerks, laboratory technician and an interviewer. The case load was 150-175 patients per day.

When she resigned in January of this year, the activities of the clinic were down to 50 patients per day with only two doctors, two nurses, two clerks and an investigator. She attributes most of the drop to the use of penicillin.

After a short vacation, Alma joined the staff of the Dayton Board of Education as a school nurse in February, 1953. And she's enjoying her work immensely.

A school nurse has four functions to prevent and control infectious and communicable diseases; to keep the children in good health and in school; to urge immunization and early correction of physical defects; and to encourage good habits of healthy living.

One part of Alma's job is to do the tests on vision and hearing and to assist the school doctors on physical examinations. If you want to hear a good story, ask her about the story of grandmother's teeth and her lecture on mouth health.

SPORTS

Sideline Slants

Overly optimistic basketball fans would do well to keep in mind the fact that the Flyers will be playing one of the nation's toughest schedules this season. Many who saw the Sallees' skim past the Harris' 62-55 in the spring workout feel all the Flyers have to do to win next season will be to show up.

As a matter of record, actually Tommy Blackburn will still be in somewhat of a rebuilding program. Although admittedly with such as Bill Uhl, 6'11"; Arlen Bockhorn, 6'4"; Gordie Dodane, 6'6" and the promising Bob's, Jacoby and Fiely, along with 6'5" Bill Mihm, there appears to be timber to build with.

Big George

That name, George Woywod, is cropping up frequently in Flyer line-ups and isn't limited to one sport. Big George will carry his 230 pounds from an end position for Joe Gavin's gridders next fall. He worked out this spring, then appeared in the spring basketball game and wound up as a member of the golf team.

Coaching Parade

Vaughn (Ox) Taylor and the redoubtable Junie Norris are two recent additions to the coaching ranks. Taylor takes over basketball and baseball at Northwestern High and Norris returns to his alma mater at Fairmont High next fall.

And Still They Come

Don (Monk) Meineke has won another award. Monk was named "Rookie of the Year" in the pro ranks this season. Monk also will be listed as the second highest scorer in the history of major college basketball over the normal three-year period when the records are published this summer.

Monk totaled 1848 points. Only Clyde Lovellette of Kansas with 1888 scored more points than Meineke.

Pep's Peeps:

The Flyers Club with Bill Lemhaus doing most of the whip-cracking staged two more fine banquets for the football and basketball teams this year. . . . A voice returns to the public address systems next year . . . it'll be Don Malloy who's taking over for Ed . . . Ed has headed west for California . . . Don handled the mike around '40 when he took over for Verne Malloy who entered service. . . . When Don went in, Ed took over.

Trophy Winners Brighten Grid Pix

Rain Dampens Spring Sports

Rain and even snow came close to making the Flyer spring sports schedule a "washout."

The tennis team under Reeves Schwartz finished with a 3 won, 4 lost record and is looking forward to a big season next year. The team's top two players, Larry Pedicord and Bob Holy-cross, return next year and only Carmen Rozzo and Walt Barnes will be lost by graduation.

Thanks to the University of Cincinnati the Flyer golfers were able to climb into the victory column. Dayton twice defeated the Bearcat links team and tied with Louisville but dropped six other matches. The Flyer linkmen finished eighth in the Ohio collegiate tourney at Columbus.

After a late start the baseball team, playing its first year under Andy Nadeau, climbed to the .500 mark. Dayton, which won only one of its first six games, finished with a record of 9 won, 9 lost.

Jimmy (Power Tower) Paxson, who joined the club at the end of spring basketball workouts provided the spark needed at the plate during the stretch drive.

It may be baseball weather but in approximately 10 short weeks the football Flyers will be back in harness preparing for the 1953 season.

The Flyers wrapped up their spring session with a 12-7 victory over an Old-Time All-Stars team in a game played for benefit of the Red Cross.

Inexperience and lack of depth will be the main handicaps faced by Joe Gavin and his staff next fall, but this is one of the most spirited clubs in U.D. history.

Spring practice trophies donated by the Flyers Club, Inc., went to Jack (Rabbit) Martin, named best offensive back, who fractured his right leg the last week of practice but will be ready by fall, and: Best Defensive Back — John Bettinger, frosh

Best Blocking Back — Ralph Jelic, frosh
Best Defensive Lineman — Jim Shafor, soph.

Best Blocking Lineman — Vince Werl, soph.

Most Improved Back — Bill Caho, junior
Most Improved Lineman — Andy Zulli, junior

Most Promising Frosh Lineman — Jack Muldowney

Most Promising Frosh Back — Don McHenry
